

“Wow, that is the secret ingredient, that we were missing, besides the magic herbs and flowers. I also need pieces of amber and magic insects, which were in your parcel. Where did you get it?” – the Polish doctor asked.

“This parcel I got from a fisherman whom I met near the lake.” – the stork said.

At the beginning they got just a small portion of them. Unfortunately, it was enough of the vaccine only for three people. The stork talked with the doctor for a long time and they decided to give the vaccine to the royal family. Luckily, one of the nurses told them that old fisherman might have some more of them. The doctor asked the stork to fly to the fisherman for more ingredients. The stork was very tired and she felt bad, but she flew because she wanted to help other people. She had a long journey to the lake where the fisherman lived. She couldn't see any people around the lake, but she saw a small, wooden house. She walked towards it and went inside. Suddenly she saw a scientist who was dressed up as a fisherman. The stork was really surprised by what she noticed. Behind the man there were lots of boxes with ingredients for the vaccine. The scientist told that he was waiting here for the stork. They started packing up all the necessary things and they went to the hospital in Portugal. There they met the doctor from Poland and other scientist who were working on making a precious vaccine. They gave them the pieces of amber and other ingredients.

After some time, it was possible to produce enough vaccines to protect everyone in the whole world. Soon the pandemic was over and people were allowed to live their normal lives.
